

About David Sheidlower:

David Sheidlower, CISSP, CISM, is Vice President and Chief Information Security and Privacy Officer for Turner Construction Company. He has been a security officer in multiple industries including Health Care and Financial Services.

He has served on the policy committee of the State of New York Health Information Network and on the Alameda County

Long Term Care planning committee.

Having provided Security leadership in both regulated and non-regulated settings, David focuses on the factors that measure an organization's security posture and how to mature that posture. He has combined the implementation of technical controls with the development of a security-aware culture within organizations.

He has published articles on many security topics, including the NIST Framework for Improving Critical Infrastructure Cybersecurity. He was also the lead author of the CISOsConnect ebook on Vulnerability Management.

He holds a Bachelor's degree from the University of California, Berkeley, and a Master's from St. Mary's College of California.